Honorable William E. Colby
Director
Central Intelligence Agency
Washington, D. C. 20505

Dear Mr. Colby:

The next meeting of the General Advisory Committee on Arms Control and Disarmament (GAC) will take place on Thursday, May 8, and Friday, May 9. At its last meeting in February, State Department and NSC officials suggested that it would be helpful if the GAC were to be briefed on new, planned U.S. verification systems, particularly in terms of their implications for arms control. Could an appropriate briefing on this subject be arranged by the Agency for the morning of Friday, May 9?

While the Committee appreciated very much the opportunity to meet with you on December 6, 1974, the Members are cognizant of the demands on your time and I wonder, consequently, whether it would be possible for a senior officer, such as Carl Duckett, to make the presentation, with such assistance as he might wish.

If I may in any way facilitate this presentation, or supply any additional information, including precision as to time and duration, perhaps someone on your staff might wish to telephone me at 632-1866.

Sincerely,

Howard Meyers
Staff Director
